

Swagelok Indiana and Swagelok Cincinnati, your fluid system source for quality products and expertise.

Swagelok®

Combined resources provide a wider scope of local engineering and service capabilities.

For six decades, companies around the globe have looked to Swagelok® to help enhance, expand, streamline, and improve their operations. But equally important to our long, successful history has been our ability to achieve these same objectives within our local operations.

That was the case in 2010, when Indiana Fluid System Technologies acquired Cincinnati Valve and Fitting, to become Swagelok Indiana and Swagelok Cincinnati. This allowed for a broader range of innovative products and services, and more game-changing solutions for customers across three states.

Indeed, for a growing number of our customers, we are more than just a mission critical supplier of quality fluid system components and stainless steel tube fittings. We are able to help our customers manage their critical short and long-term needs by bringing added benefits to their procurement, applications and logistics. What's more, our supply chain management services reduce inventory carrying costs and optimize productivity.

Our new enterprise now offers a larger parts inventory, more field service engineers, and capabilities that include custom hose manufacturing, sub-assembly and many added custom solutions such as:

- Local hose fabrication
- Tube bending assemblies to exacting dimensions
- Certified assembly of leak-tight tube and pipe fitting end connections and threads
- Orbital welding of tube and pipe components
- Assembly of automated valves to customer specifications
- Building of panels or skids
- Source and integrate approved third-party products and electrical as required

Swagelok Indiana and Swagelok Cincinnati is also experienced at working with rough ideas or preliminary sketches for unique assemblies, and we have the engineering resources to complete your design and provide a manufacturing prototype.

With distribution centers in Indianapolis and Cincinnati, as well as an inventory warehouse truck, you're certain to get parts and services you need on demand. If there is ever a need for a custom part, we have access to Swagelok's advanced design engineers, who will create or modify existing products to fulfill your specific request.

We'll partner with you to find the right solutions.
