Christopher Nehez

Vice President, Information Technology and Chief Information Officer

Chris Nehez joined Swagelok Company as chief information officer in 2019 to help align people, information, technology, and processes to support Swagelok's overall strategy. Chris is passionate about applying technology to deliver innovative solutions and enable a sustainable competitive advantage.

Prior to Swagelok, Chris served as vice president of IT and chief information officer at Oatey Company, a leading global manufacturer of plumbing products. He has also held leadership roles at Ernst & Young, Eaton Corporation, and Pentair/ERICO International.

Outside of work, Chris is a single dad and raising three children. He's always looking to make a difference in the community and is a 2019 graduate of Leadership Cleveland, which is a year-long program that helps you gain a better understanding of community challenges and how you can make an impact. He also serves on the board of FrontLine Service, which assists some of the most vulnerable members of the community.

Chris graduated cum laude from Ohio University with a Bachelor of Science in information and telecommunications systems.
