Finest in the Field

...fourth in a series of on-the-job success stories that demonstrate how Swagelok Componentry and Strategic Support Services consistently save you substantial time, money, and worry in even your most challenging applications and operating environments

Your Challenge

A global manufacturer of highly or fully automated equipment such as catalyst testing tools to improve or test processes for Chemical research and development, needed to secure components that would not fail. To do so would shut down an entire production unit, stopping critical experiments and causing results to be scrapped. Result: Substantial and unacceptable time and money losses.

Your Solution

Swagelok products delivered the unquestioned safety, premium quality, and utmost reliability required to meet the rapid responses and precise output times expected by our customer's end users. In fact, use of Swagelok fittings, valves, and other tools, helped our account produce catalyst testing units at a faster-than-ever rate. Beyond the component transactions, though, an extremely strong bond was cemented between Swagelok and customer...one of collaboration and trust that Swagelok would always be “there” when needed – with products/inventory, technical support, system evaluations and advisories, training, and overall service to ensure our customer keeps its promises to its customers, especially in such an ever-changing market.

Your Healthier Bottom Line

Swagelok changed the customer perception from “quality componentry supplier” to true, solutions-focused, highly collaborative partner – one that could be counted upon to help get more done safely, effectively, and efficiently.
